

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A thermally processed image forming material less causative of adhesion during storage in a form of commercial product is provided. The thermally processed image forming material has on only one side of a support an image forming layer, in which the outermost layer on the same side with the image forming layer contains a binder different from that contained in the outermost layer on the opposite side of the support.

008780" E0804960